Notes to nostrification and recognition of professional qualifications for general practitioners from third countries:

The information provided is solely a portrayal of the nostrification and recognition regulations. Information regarding immigration can be found on www.migration.gv.at/en. The Red-White-Red – Card may only be granted upon completion of the recognition process.

1. Requirement: the successful completion of your studies in medicine from a third country must be equivalent with the Austrian medical degree.
2. Compilation of documents if available: application form, diploma, transcript, thesis/academic work and abstracts, residence registration form, marriage certificate, passport, curriculum vitae and proof that the nostrification is urgently required for the exercise of the profession in Austria (confirmation of the Austrian Medical Chamber). Certified translations of the documents are necessary (in Vienna English is accepted). E.g. Arabic certified translations can amount up to € 600.00. The documents need to meet intergovernmental agreements according to legalization requirements (legalization fees should be taken into account).

German language courses in preparation for the random sample test (German C1 exam is required during the recognition process); the attendance of medical terminology courses is recommended.

3. Only one application may be filed to one university.
4. The preliminary proceedings are a comparison of the curricula through the university.

In most of the cases the random sample test must be taken. It is undertaken by the three medical universities four times a year whereby medical knowledge from ten clinical modules is tested. Good command of German is essential for the random sample test.

5. After completion of the preliminary proceedings and the random sample test the decision of the nostrification (additional supplementary exams) and a deadline will be enacted (in case of a negative ruling nostrification and recognition of professional qualifications are not possible at the chosen university).
6. Once the decision is positive one may enrol as a non-degree program student at the university. The tenure of the nostrification and recognition process will vary depending on the number of exams given (in Vienna there is a minimum of two exams: pharmacy and forensic medicine). The given deadline by the university is up to eight semesters, tuition fees are currently € 383.56 per semester.
7. Once all exams are completed the Medical University will give a decision about the equivalence with the Austrian university degree and grant the use of the Austrian academic degree.
8. Entry into the Austrian List of Medical doctors at the Austrian Medical Chamber in the federal state respectively: before requesting entry into the Austrian List of Medical doctors at the Austrian Medical Chamber the medical German language exam on C1 level at the Academy of Medical doctors needs to be taken (the language certificate C1 is a pre-requisite in order to undertake the medical German C1 exam) – examination fee € 906.00 (repeat exam fee: € 453.00).

9. Partial recognition of foreign medical training periods may be possible, others need to be retaken. The Education Commission of the Austrian Medical Chamber assesses how far the foreign medical training may be comparable to the medical training periods (through vocational documents, confirmation from hospitals where the applicant has worked as a general practitioner or medical specialist, etc.)
10. Medical training may be commenced in Austria without the recognition of your foreign medical training periods – longer waiting times are to be expected depending on the federal state.
11. Additionally all applicants need to take the exam as a General Practitioner or Medical Specialist. Examination fees € 641.00 or € 1,170.00.
